

Cadets in the news

Congratulations to engineer officer cadets of the company, James Austermulhe (left, lower picture), Frederick Perry and Trevor Torbett (left, top), who are studying at the South Shields Marine and Technical College, School of Navigation, Warsash, and the Plymouth College of Maritime Studies respectively. They, with 27 other engineer officer cadets and apprentices from other engineering industries, were selected to receive the Lloyds Register of Shipping Awards given annually to the best thirty students of the Institute of Marine Engineers

Foot of page: Another group of young men are starting their careers aboard Clan Malcolm. Before the ship sailed, their parents were invited to a tea party aboard where they could see their sons in the surroundings that will be home to them for the next six months. In the picture from left to right: training officer J. R. D. Innis, cadets Loxton, Ham, Hampson, Lukes, Preston, Daley, Waters, Tattersfield, King, Clark
