

■ Riding high out of the narrow waters of the Manchester Ship Canal is Clan Maclaren. Point of this picture is that the colour photograph on which it is based was taken in August by Nigel, younger son of Manchester's CLANSMAN contact Peter Coultas. And aboard the Maclaren, serving as an engineer cadet, is the Coultas' elder son, Paul Andrew. The ship is seen on outward passage, near the Moore Lane swing bridge.